Escalation of conflict

Large scale displacement

Thousands injured

Livelihoods disrupted

Health services destroyed

More than 700,000 people have registered as internally displaced following intensive airstrikes launched by Israel across Beirut's southern suburbs, South Lebanon and the Bekaa Valley. As of 9 March at least 290 people have been killed in the attacks. In response to the escalation of hostilities, people have fled to improvised collective shelters. Lebanon is already host to approximately 1.3 million Syrian refugees. Affected communities are in urgent need of safe shelter, access to clean water and sanitation, food and essential household items.
